

Daily Schedule Flow Chart

The Daily Schedule Flow Chart is used in our classroom and the children refer to it often. Sometimes they help us organize it with the days events. It does not have any specific times written on it. It is understood by sequencing. For example they may see a music note to represent Neal coming to our classroom for music. When is music? It is after work time. The children look at the order of the day throughout the day. Some children really need to know, what is next. In our classroom we change the flow chart at noon for the second part of the day.

You Will Need;

Daily Schedule printed, images printed, sheet protector, 8.5 x 11 frame, or laminating sheet, velcro sticker dots, tape or tacky putty, scissors, dry erase marker, small box to hold images.

Directions:

1. Print out attached pdfs; daily schedule and images
2. Laminate, frame or place in sheet protector the daily schedule
3. If possible laminate image sheet then cut out the images into small square/rectangular pieces. Packaging tape could be used instead of laminating.
4. Place rough velcro dots on each space in the activity column and their opposite soft velcro dot on the back of each image. (Can place velcro centered or to the left to allow older friends to write the activity next to it.)
5. Store images in box.
6. Place rough velcro dot on bottom or side of Daily Schedule sheet and its smooth opposite on the dry erase marker.
7. Hang Schedule on wall or refrigerator at child eye level. You are ready to go.

Note: You likely don't have a laminator. For long term use I recommend that after quarantine you print these out again and have staples laminate it for you. You can get velcro dots through Staples who is for a limited time offering free delivery. Also Michael's art supply has them with curbside pickup.
